

Curriculum Vitae of Joshua Brown

1. PUBLICATIONS

BOOKS

In press. Early evidence for Tuscanisation in the letters of Milanese merchants in the Datini Archive, Prato, 1396-1402, (Milan: Istituto Lombardo Accademia di Scienze e Lettere). [accepted 13.10.14]

2014. John J. Kinder and Joshua J. Brown, Canon Raffaele Martelli in Western Australia 1853-1864: life and letters, (Northcote, Victoria: Morning Star), iv + 334 pp. ISBN: 9781925208498

JOURNAL ARTICLES AND CHAPTERS

In Press. “The multilingual network of a 14th century Tuscan merchant: Francesco di Marco Datini and his correspondence”, in Merchants of Innovation. The languages of traders, ed. by Esther-Miriam Wagner, Bettina Beinhoff and Ben Outhwaite, Studies in Language Change, (Berlin: De Gruyter Mouton). [accepted 11.06.15]

In Press. Caruso, M. and Brown, J. “Broadening units to broadened horizons: The impact of New Courses 2012 on enrolments in Italian at the University of Western Australia”, Babel 50: 1, pp.24-41 [accepted 22.09.15]

- 2015. “Testimonianze di una precoce toscanizzazione nelle lettere commerciali del mercante milanese Francesco Tanso in Archivio Datini”, Forum Italicum 50: 3, pp.
- 2014. Caruso, M and Brown, J. “Innovative translation. Dubbing films in Italian with iMovie.” In C. Travis, J. Hajek, C. Nettelbeck, E. Beckmann & A. Lloyd-Smith (Eds), Practices and Policies: Current Research in Languages and Cultures Education. Sydney: Office for Learning and Teaching, pp.507-518.
- 2014. Brown, J. and Caruso, M. “New Courses 2012: the impact on enrolments in Italian at the University of Western Australia.” In C. Travis, J. Hajek, C. Nettelbeck, E. Beckmann & A. Lloyd-Smith (Eds), Practices and Policies: Current Research in Languages and Cultures Education. Sydney: Office for Learning and Teaching, pp.39-53.
- 2013. “Language variation in 15th century Milan: evidence of koineization in the letters (1397-1402) of the Milanese merchant Giovanni da Pessano”, Italian Studies 68: 1, pp.57-77.
- 2013. “Transcribing the Italian Correspondence of Canon Raffaele Martelli in the New Norcia Archives, 1853-1864”, New Norcia Studies 21, pp.73-82.
- 2013. Review of Elizabeth Tyler (ed.), Conceptualizing Multilingualism in Medieval England, c. 800-c.1250, Brepols, Turnhout, 2012. in Parergon 30, 2, pp.254-256.
- 2012. “Evidence for early Tuscanisation in the commercial letters from the Milanese merchant Giovannino da Dugnano (?-1398) in the Datini Archive in Prato”, Italica 89: 4, pp.464-488.
- 2012. Review of Filippo Salvatore, “La presenza dell’italiano nel Canada francese”. In Identità e diversità nella lingua e nella letteratura italiana (Firenze: Cesati, 2007), pp.413-430 in Rivista italiana di dialettologia 35, p.520.
- 2012. Review of Lorenzo Rocchi, “La lingua di chi è emigrato. Un’indagine tra la Sicilia e l’Inghilterra”, Altreitalie, pp.129-156 in Rivista italiana di dialettologia 35, p.510.
- 2011. Report on Australasian Centre for Italian Studies-Cassamarca Scholarship, in Italy under the Southern Cross, ed. Gino Moliterno and David Moss, Panada Press, p.262.
- 2008. Review of Richard Freadman, This Crazy Thing a Life, Perth, UWA Press, Limina: a journal of historical and cultural studies 14, pp.150-51.
- Reviewer for LCNAU Conference Proceedings (March 2014)
- Reviewer for Merchants of Innovation. The languages of traders ed. by Esther-Miriam Wagner (Berlin: De Gruyter Mouton (June 2015)

Chair for a session entitled Language Learning: Groups and Community at the 8th biennial ACIS conference, Sydney, 1-4 July 2015

2. CONFERENCE PAPERS

2015 Managing Expectations: Support and guidance for sessionals in languages and cultures education at Australian universities. Languages and Cultures Network for Australian Universities (LCNAU) at Macquarie University, Sydney, November 25-27 [with Federica Verdina]

Access Granted: Issues of accessibility and languages at Australian universities. Australasian Centre for Italian Studies 8th Biennial conference on “Fertile Spaces, Dynamic Places: Mapping the Cultures of Italy” at the University of Sydney, July 1-4 [with Marinella Caruso]

The Language Bonus as an incentive for second language study in Australian schools and universities. Australasian Centre for Italian Studies 8th Biennial conference on “Fertile Spaces, Dynamic Places: Mapping the Cultures of Italy” at the University of Sydney, July 1-4 [with Marinella Caruso]

An assessment of the Language Bonus as an incentive for second language study in Australian schools and universities. Teaching and Learning Forum on “Teaching and learning uncapped” at the University of Western Australia, January 29-30. [with Marinella Caruso, in absentia]

2014 An assessment of the Language Bonus as an incentive for second language study in Australian schools and universities. “Applied Linguistic Association of New Zealand” conference at Auckland University of Technology, Auckland, November 29. [with Marinella Caruso, in absentia]

Access Granted: language enrolments and issues of accessibility in Australian universities. “Applied Linguistic Association of New Zealand” conference at Auckland University of Technology, Auckland, November 29. [with Marinella Caruso, in absentia]

Broadening Horizons: the impact of New Courses 2012 on enrolments in Italian at the University of Western Australia. “Italians Down Under” conference at the Italian Embassy, Canberra, September 5-6.

The multilingual network of a 14th century Tuscan merchant: Francesco di Marco Datini and his correspondence. “Merchants of Innovation. The languages of traders” at the University of Cambridge, UK, April 7-8.

2013 Linguistic convergence in 15th century Lombardy: the correspondence of suor Elisabetta of Pavia. Australasian Centre for Italian Studies 7th Biennial Conference on “Re-imagining Italian Studies” at the University of South Australia and Flinders University, December 4-6.

Early evidence for Tuscanisation in the letters of Milanese merchants in the Datini Archive, Prato, 1396-1402. Society for Italian Studies Biennial Conference at the University of Durham, UK, July 8-11

The impact of UWA’s New Courses on language enrolments in Italian Studies. Languages and Cultures Network for Australian Universities (LCNAU) at the Australian National University, July 3-5. Represented at the 7th ACIS conference at the University of South Australia and Flinders University, December 4-6.

The use of iMovie in a first-year language course at the University of Western Australia. Languages and Cultures Network for Australian Universities (LCNAU) at the Australian National University, July 3-5. Represented at the 7th ACIS conference at the University of South Australia and Flinders University, Dec. 4-6.

2012 Early evidence for Tuscanisation in the letters of Milanese merchants in the Datini Archive, Prato, 1396-1402. Perth Medieval and Renaissance Group (PMRG) Conference on “Receptions: Medieval and Early Modern Cultural Appropriations” at the University of Western Australia, August 17-18.

2011 Language variation in 15th century Milan: evidence of the Lombard koinè in the letters (1397-1402) of the Milanese merchant Giovanni da Pessano. Australasian Centre for Italian Studies (ACIS) 6th Biennial Conference on “Italian Studies – New Directions” at the University of Melbourne, July 13-16.

2010 Evidence for early Tuscanisation in the letters of the Milanese merchant Bassano da Pescina to the Datini network, 1383-1394. American Association of Italian Studies (AAIS) Annual Conference, Ann Arbor, University of Michigan, April 22-25.

2009 Code-switching in the letters of the 14th century Tuscan merchant Francesco di Marco Datini. ACIS 5th Biennial Conference on “L’Italia nella Grande Migrazione” at the University of Auckland, February 18-21.

2009 Maintaining the Momentum: Reasons for Studying Italian in a first year undergraduate course at the University of WA. Teaching and Learning Forum on “Teaching and learning for global graduates” at Curtin University, January 29-30.